Dear Commodore Nation,

Vanderbilt student-athletes learn lessons and create memories that last a lifetime. As a former student-athlete, I know that the friendships I formed here endure. The lessons I learned serve me still, as I serve the next generation of Commodores. We're surrounded by the best and brightest young people who are eager to set new standards and are committed to the hard work necessary to achieve their goals. They make Vanderbilt great. They always have. And by always daring to grow, they dare us to be forever bold.

We launched the historic Vandy United campaign to reimagine what is possible for Vanderbilt Athletics. With our initial goal met and an exciting new phase underway as part of the university's $3.2 billion Dare to Grow campaign, construction has begun on a number of key projects. But our student-athletes aren't waiting for bulldozers or cranes to build a brighter future. They shape it every time they represent us.

This past year saw teams and student-athletes lead the way. Our bowlers, including National Player of the Year Mabel Cummins, won a third national championship. Heptathlete Beatrice Juskeviciute won the SEC championship and a silver medal in the NCAA Track and Field Championships. The VandyBoys brought home an SEC title, thrilling Commodore Nation with their tournament run in Hoover. In an annual tribute to coach Tim Corbin's mentorship, VandyBoys featured prominently in the Major League Baseball Draft. Coach Clark Lea's football team brought fall alive with back-to-back SEC victories against Kentucky and Florida. Men's basketball reinvigorated Memorial Magic with a deep postseason run. Men's golf returned to the NCAA Championships, while soccer, women's golf and women's tennis reached the postseason.

Vandy United is our opportunity to give our student-athletes the tools to go still further. This past year we launched initiatives to enhance Hawkins Field and create the best fan experience in college baseball. We broke ground on the basketball operations center and FirstBank Stadium projects and shared our vision to significantly enhance team facilities at Vanderbilt Legends Club and the Lummis Family Tennis Center. We welcomed the Ingram Center for Student-Athlete Success to support academic, personal and career success. And thanks to an unprecedented gift and transformational act built on a foundation of trust, we christened the Frist Athletics Village that will knit our Commodore community together for years to come.

Thank you for your continued support of Vanderbilt Athletics. By supporting the Vandy United campaign, you help transform the lives of more than 350 student-athletes today and thousands more who will follow in their footsteps.

With your help, we are just getting started.
